Mokena, Will County, Illinois, Friday February 6, 1931.

$1.50 Per Year In Advance

Whether Mokena Will Have $70,000 Sewer Is Up To Property Owners

The proposed $70,000 sanitary sewer has been the chief topic of interest in Mokena since last Saturday when the property owners received their assessment notices. In many instances the assessments run into the thousands. A great storm of protest has arisen. The hearing on the confirmation of these assessments will be held in the county court at Joliet before Judge Ralph Austin on February 6th. If the property owners who are opposed to the proposed sewer wish to fight it, they must engage an attorney as well as an engineer and enter their objections. The entire matter is up to the property owners whether they want to mortgage their homes for the next 20 years.

A number of the objecting property owners have formed the Mokena Tax Payers Protective Association and are advocating that all objecting property owners pay $10 into a fund with which to hire an attorney to fight the sewer proposition in court. A fund of at least $500 is needed for this purpose. So far $120 have been raised. The balance of $380 must be raised and ready for use by next Monday evening. If this fund is not raised by that time, the property owners will have no other recourse but to pay their assessments for the next 20 years. Whether this sewer matter goes over rests ENTIRELY with the people of Mokena and no body else.

Any pledges can be paid to John C. Nielsen at the Rock Island depot or to Wm. Semmler, treasurer of the Taxpayers Association. If the fund mentioned is not raised, then there is no further need for a few objectors to think they are going to get anywhere. It takes concerted action to fight this case.

The property owners in the McIntosh sub-division are waging an entirely separate fight and have already engaged attorney Edward Nalchoff of Joliet to represent them. It is understood that the Rock Island railroad has been assessed $1450 on their Mokena property and that they will also object thru their own attorney.

The following circular letter was circulated Tuesday by the Mokena Taxpayers Protective Association setting forth objections to the proposed sewer system:

Who is the originator of the proposed sewerage idea?

Have you been consulted as to whether or not you were in favor of the sewerage system?

How many property owners would use the proposed sanitary sewer?

What will be the cost? Will the estimated $70,000 cover all the costs, including discounting of the bonds, right of ways, easements, condemnation suits, replacement of streets, and the services of a special man to operate the treatment plant?

We have approximately 150 property owners in the village. At the estimated cost of $70,000 the average cost will be $472.65 plus interest at 6 per cent for 20 years. The interest for the first year will be $4,253.89. Compound the interest for 20 years at six per cent and add to the original cost.

Do you know that after the sewer is once under construction the court can allow supplementary assessments to meet the actual cost? If $70,000 is not sufficient the court can issue special assessments to cover? No recourse.

What assurance have you that the cost will not exceed $100,000? Have there been any bids received or asked for? Why not let some contractor offer a bid on this proposed sewerage system to arrive at the actual cost?

No storm or surface water can be run in the sanitary sewer. Will this mean another drainage system to carry off the storm and surface water?

Has the village actual need of this sewerage system at the present time?

Do you want this mortgage on your property for 20 years?

In order to contest the proposed sewer system it will necessitate engaging attorneys, engineer and involve other costs. Therefore it is proposed that each property owner opposed to the sewerage system donate a sum of $10 to raise a fund to combat said sewerage plan. A sum of $10 at this time will save you hundreds later on. The pledges can be paid to J. C. Nielsen, chairman or Wm. Semmler, treasurer of The Mokena Tax Payers Protective Association.

If you are in favor of the sewer system, this letter will not interest you, but would suggest that you reserve same for future reference.

Are you going to accept the assessment without protest or are you going to fight?

It requires immediate and prompt action to save your property.

Would suggest that each and ev-

Why Proposed Sewer Should Be Defeated

To The Editor:

Why do we need a sanitary sewer in Mokena, as proposed, which will cost, according to estimates, $70,898.10?

This proposed sewer has a main tile on Wolf Road of 12 inches. The present tile line serving the school and vicinity is a 12 inch line, yet, when we have storms the water backs up in it-how can a 12 inch line serve the entire community, if the present one won't serve a few?

It has been said that the proposed sewer will care for basements, etc., this is to be a SANITARY sewer, and not a STORM sewer, nor a combination sewer. Senator Barr's subdivision (Cherry Hill) where lots cost about $2,000 each, and Geo. J. Hacker's Brookwood subdivision in New Lenox and the Elmore subdivisions in Tinley Park, where property is valued higher than in Mokena, all are without sanitary sewers. Why cannot we get along without a sanitary sewer?

The estimated cost of $70,898 is only an estimate-why cannot we know what amount we are mortgaging our property for?

Is the present time a proper time to attempt to spend this amount of money for a non-essential, when even the United States cannot afford to mortgage itself to pay the Veteran's Bonus? Certainly NOT.

The present laws permit village officials to benefit their own, contractors and other special interests at the expense of the tax payers, but that fact doesn't mean that Justice need be done. It is essential that property owners fight this unjust imposition, as did our forefathers fight for their rights and liberty--"Millions for defense, but not one cent for tribute." Let us be true Americans, and fight this thing in Court--don't be afraid to fight--if you don't fight NOW, they can add to this assessment whatever additional cost may be encountered when the bills come in. YOU CANNOT TELL HOW MUCH YOU WILL HAVE TO PAY. ACT NOW!

To Hold Hearing On Orland Zoning Ordinance Feb. 21

A public hearing on the new Orland Park zoning ordinance will be held in the Orland Park school the evening of Saturday, February 21st at 7 p. m. Copies of the proposed ordinance together with district maps can be seen at the office of the village clerk, the stores of James E. Creer, Loebe Bros., and the Purple Candle restaurant.

Zoning is the application of common sense and fairness to the public regulations governing the use of private real estate. It is a painstaking, honest effort to provide each district or neighborhood as nearly as practicable, with just such protection and just such liberty as are sensible in that particular district. It avoids the error of trying to apply exactly the same building regulations to every part of a city or town regardless of whether it is a suburban residence section, or a factory district, or a business and financial center. It fosters civic spirit by creating confidence in the justice and stability of the protection so afforded.

Zoning gives everyone who lives or does business in a community a chance for the reasonable enjoyment of his rights.

The Washington Bicentennial

By ELMO SCOTT WATSON

BEGINNING a year hence, February 22, 1932, and extending until Thanksgiving day of next year, there will be observed throughout the United States the greatest celebration ever conceived for a national hero. It is the celebration of the two hundredth anniversary of the birth of George Washington and congress has created a commission of outstanding Americans, which is now engaged in planning this nationwide event. The commission, officially known as the United States Commission of the Two Hundredth Anniversary of the Birth of George Washington, has the following personnel:

The President of the United States, chairman; the vice president of the United States, and the speaker of the house of representatives, Senators Simeon D. Fess, Ohio, vice chairman; Arthur Capper, Kansas; Carter Glass, Virginia; and Lee S. Overman, North Carolina. Representatives Willis C. Hawley, Oregon; John Q. Tilson, Connecticut; Joseph W. Byrns, Tennessee; and R. Walton Moore, Virginia. Presidential commissioners: Mrs. John Dickinson Sherman, Colorado; Mrs. Anthony Wayne Cooke, Pennsylvania; Henry Ford, Michigan; George K. Eastman, New York; C. Bascom Slemm, Virginia; Wallace McCamant, Oregon; Albert Bushnell Hart, Massachusetts; and Bernard M. Baruch, New York. The associate directors under whose management the plans are being organized and directed are Lieut. Col. U. S. Grant III, and Representative Sol Bloom of New York.

According to the program now being worked out by the associate directors, every man, woman and child in the United States is to be given an opportunity to participate in the observance of this great bicentennial. The celebration will be nationwide and will reach every village, hamlet and town in the country. In order to insure the success of such a far-flung and all-inclusive program, there will be no exposition, no geographical concentration of the celebration in the form of an exposition. The commission wishes to exclude all such material phases. There will be no great demonstration of the progress of America in this sense, although a realization of the things for which George Washington strived will serve to emphasize in the minds of all the blessings which are enjoyed by his countrymen of today. Instead of an assembling of evidences of wealth and prosperity there is to be an emphasis upon the spiritual—a re-awakening in the hearts of all people of appreciation for the character and the life of America's greatest citizen.

However, the material side of the celebration will not be entirely neglected, in so far as there will be material phases which will help emphasize the spiritual. These will be mainly in the form of the various completed memorial projects which have been under way for several years past.

Among these memorials are the following: The Arlington Memorial bridge, now well along in construction and virtually certain to be completed by the bicentennial year.

Completion of the monument gardens at the base of the Washington monument, originally proposed in the 1901 plan for Washington and urged by city planners since.

Completion of the arboretum and the national botanical gardens.

Completion of the proposed Mount Vernon boulevard between the west end of the Arlington bridge and the home of George Washington.

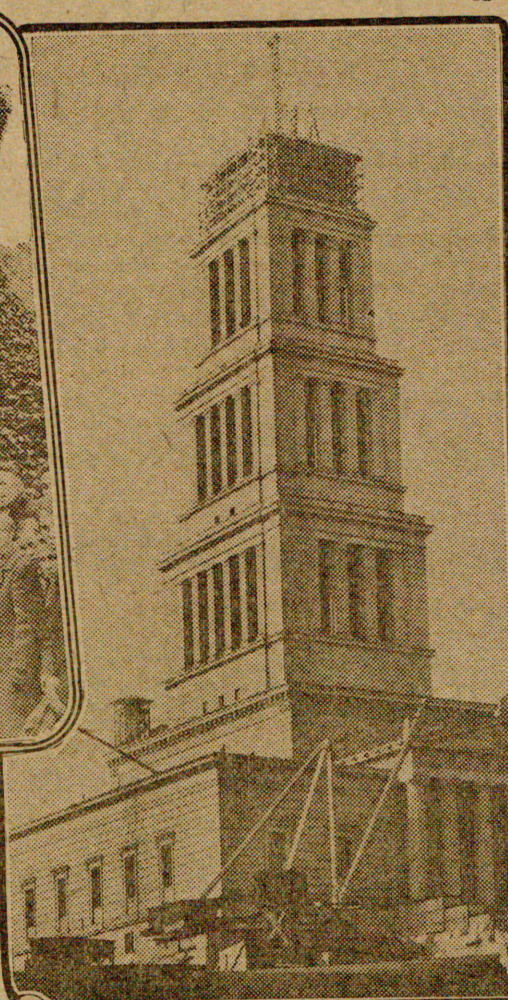

Cutting through the mall of the parallel roadways on each side of the great central composition and advancement of the public building program to a point where the government triangle becomes that in fact.

Completion of the scheme for making Wakefield, the birthplace of George Washington, a national shrine, and construction of roadways and airplane landing field and wharves for ships at the shrine.

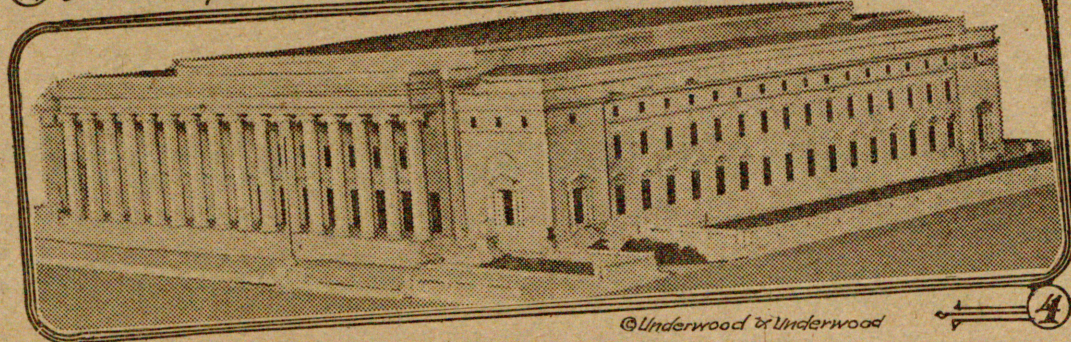

Completion of the George Washington National Masonic Memorial building in Alexandria, Va., a $4,000,000 structure, erected by the Masons of the country to an honored fellow member.

Completion of the George Washington Memorial building in Washington, the idea for which came from Washington himself who provided in his will for a national university and emphasized in his last message to congress the importance of "the general diffusion of knowledge" through proper institutions. A center such as the memorial hall will provide is now lacking in Washington. According to plans, the building will have not only a large auditorium with a large organ, but several smaller halls seating from 500 to 2,500 people.

A number of projects which will carry the memorial idea to those who possibly may not be able to visit the Capital City during the celebration and see for themselves these magnificent structures, have been outlined by the commission.

1. One of the shrines which those who attend the 1932 celebration will visit—Washington's tomb at Mount Vernon.

2. The beautiful George Washington Masonic Memorial building, which is nearing completion atop a high hill overlooking Alexandria, Va.

3. The Father of His Country as he will appear on a new stamp. This portrait of George Washington, owned by the Westmoreland club of Richmond, Va., and believed to be based on the painting by Charles Wilson Peale, is one which Postmaster General Brown wishes to reproduce on one of the series of 18 stamps which the Post Office department expects to issue in connection with the 1932 celebration.

4. A model of the huge George Washington Memorial building which is to be erected in Washington in the Mall district, south of Pennsylvania avenue, not far from the Capitol. It will contain one of the largest auditoriums in Washington, to be used for patriotic and other public gatherings, and it is hoped to be completed by 1932.

In the office of Dr. Albert Bushnell Hart, historian of the commission, there is being prepared a series of articles, devoted to many phases of Washington's life. These are written under such significant titles as "George Washington the Farmer," "George Washington the Business Man," "The Home Life of Washington," and many others.

It has been said that George Washington left a better record of his own life than is found in even the most pretentious of all the biographies which have been prepared. He was a prolific writer, and no great man has ever left a more complete account of his entire life than is to be found in Washington's diaries and the hundreds of letters he wrote. Most of this material is now in the Library of Congress, but there are many interesting letters and papers written by Washington which have never before been published.

In order to prepare this material for publication, the commission has appointed a special committee on definitive writings. The committee, headed by Dr. John C. Fitzpatrick of the manuscript division of the Library of Congress, will carefully examine all that can be found of the letters and papers of which Washington was the author, and from this mass will select the most interesting and important.

Among the proposals for country-wide celebration of the bicentennial is a suggestion made by William Tyler Page, clerk of the house of representatives and executive secretary of the commission, who has outlined a tentative program, summarized by months, as follows:

FEBRUARY

"A great Memorial day for Washington on February 22, with the inauguration of the year's program.

"Formal dedication of the national memorials erected or constructed by the national government in memory of George Washington.

"Meeting of the governors of all of the states.

"Memorial oration by the President of the United States broadcast throughout the land.

"At night, great indoor pageant of the life of Washington, with marvelous music, broadcast all over the world. John Philip Sousa has consented to compose a George Washington march.

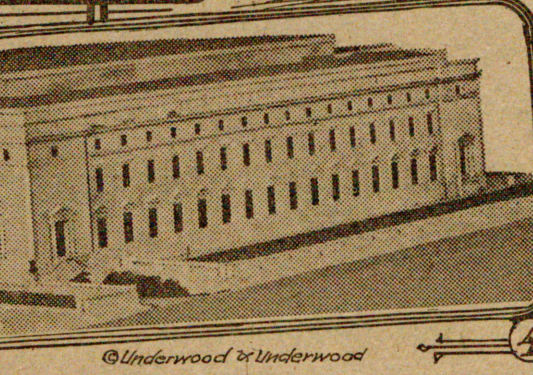

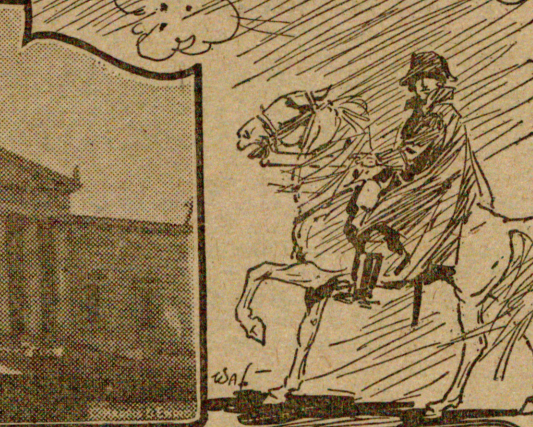

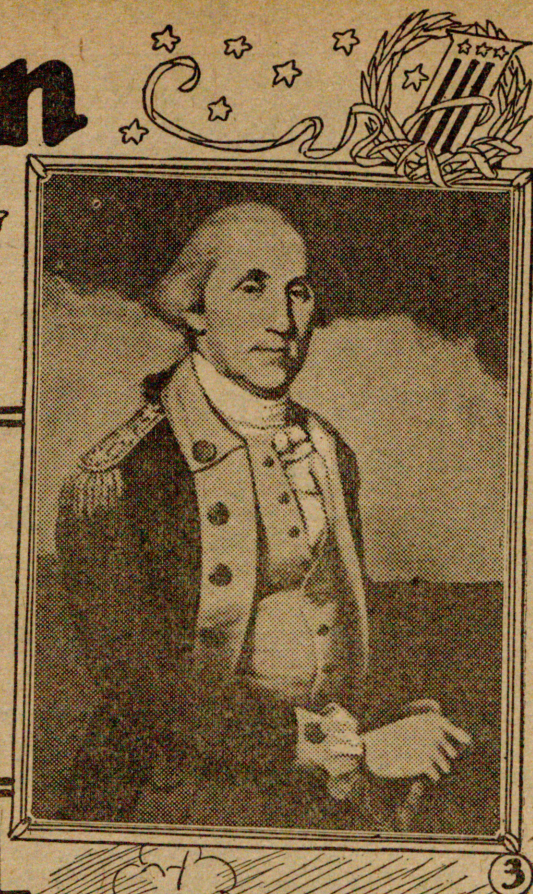

"Tributes to Washington spoken over the radio by world rulers and statesmen.

MARCH

"The welcoming to Washington as guests of the nation the descendants of all Presidents of the United States on President's day, March 4.

"Dedication of portraits of the Presidents in the George Washington university, with tributes by governors of the states presenting the portraits.

"A parade, led by the President and vice president and all living former Presidents and vice presidents, and representation of the characteristics of inauguration parades from the time of Jefferson.

"In the evening a great social event, probably a revival of the historic inaugural ball.

APRIL

"A special Easter celebration.

"A time of exaltation of religion in the life of the nation all over America.

"A procession in the city of Washington of the clergy of all faiths under the flag of the United States.

"High tribute to Washington as a churchman, with the message by a world-renowned preacher, to be broadcast all over America.

MAY

"A special celebration here and over the nation on Mother's day to exalt motherhood, and especially the mother of George Washington.

"May 30—a day of tribute to all heroes of the republic, with a parade (day or night), with blue and gray and khaki side by side—a nation marching together. Great services at Arlington and elsewhere in memory of the heroic dead.

"Opening or closing a week of reunions of the Grand Army of the Republic, Confederate soldiers, veterans of the Spanish-American war, American Legion, veterans of World war, etc. The greatest Memorial day in America ever observed, with the life of George Washington as a soldier and statesman exalted as the exemplar in time of war and in peace.

JUNE

"On June 14, Flag day, a day of vast outdoor pageantry, participated in by every state that has a star in the flag, respect for the flag of the United States being the keynote—the flag which symbolizes the republic of George Washington.

JULY

"An old-fashioned Fourth of July with parades, universal decoration of homes and public buildings, fireworks under proper supervision, and great orations on the principles of the Declaration of Independence—all broadcast.

AUGUST

"The month of pilgrimages to the historic shrines in America, ending always at Washington, with events daily in the open air that shall lure and thrill the multitudes of pilgrims (other summer months are suitable, but the climax might be reached in August, and possibly in September).

SEPTEMBER

"George Washington knew what it meant to labor with his hands as well as with his brain. He was also an employer of labor. He knew, therefore, the viewpoints of employer and employee. To him all honorable labor was sacred. On Labor day, dedicated to men and women of America who labor, let them remember thankfully the father of a country in which those who labor are esteemed for their part in America's development.

"A gathering in Washington of the educators of America, with the school of government established in memory of George Washington in George Washington university as the principal objective, and the placing before them of the immense part they must take in the Americanizing of Americans in the future.

"Columbus and Roosevelt days should be appropriately celebrated.

"In pageant, motion pictures, orations, great gatherings and so forth, repeated all over the republic, show America the great march of the ages from the discovery of the continent to the opening of the Pacific at Panama and the rise of America from the vision of Columbus to the world leadership of today under the influence and example of George Washington.

NOVEMBER

"The glorification on Thanksgiving day of the American home and the old-fashioned ideals of America in the midst of a new age. Special tributes all over America to our mothers and fathers, and the inculcation of reverence and love for age, home, and country."

TASTY DESSERTS

To the majority a meal is not finished or at all satisfactory unless some form of dessert is served. It may be a few stuffed dates, or a bit of fruit fresh or dried, or a handful of nuts. Whatever it may be the meal is well rounded and more enjoyed when something sweet finishes it.

Prune Whip.—Pick over, wash and cover with cold water, two dozen prunes. After soaking ten to twelve hours cook in the water in which they were soaked. Remove the stones and put the pulp through a coarse sieve. To the pulp add one-half cupful of sugar, two tablespoonfuls of lemon juice, the grated rind of half a lemon and one-third of a teaspoonful of salt. Now fold in the whites of six eggs which have been beaten stiff. Turn the mixture into a buttered baking dish, set in a pan of water and bake until firm in a moderate oven. Serve with a boiled custard or with sweet cream.

Toasted Sponge Cake With Pineapple.—Cut stale sponge cake into slices one-half inch thick, then cut with a biscuit cutter rounds the size of pineapple slices. Spread these rounds with butter and sprinkle with sugar, set into the oven until delicately toasted and glazed. Drain the pineapple slices, add to the sirup one-half cupful of sugar, one tablespoonful of lemon juice, the grated rind of half a lemon. Add the pineapple and heat to the boiling point, cook two minutes. Reduce the heat and keep hot ready to serve. Place a slice of the pineapple on each piece of cake and pour over the sirup. Serve at once.

French Fried Onions.—Mix and sift one cupful of flour, one-half teaspoonful of salt, two-thirds of a cupful of water, beat until smooth; add two tablespoonfuls of cooking oil and fold in one stiffly beaten egg white. Slice ten or more onions one-eighth inch thick and separate into rings. Soak in milk to cover one hour. Drain and dry, dip in the batter and fry until a light brown. Drain on soft paper.

Australian Ballot Now

Universal in America

Australian ballot is the name given to a system of secret voting. The name arose from the fact that the essential features of the system were first introduced in 1858 in South Australia, one of the states of the Australian commonwealth, says an article in Pathfinder Magazine. A system of voting modeled after the Australian system was adopted in England in 1872. In the United States this method was first employed in local elections at Louisville, Ky., in 1888, and in the same year Massachusetts adopted secret voting for all state elections, beginning in 1889. The Australian ballot, in one form or other, finally was adopted by every state in the Union and it still is employed except where it has been supplanted by voting machines, which retain the essential features of the Australian system.

According to the original Australian system, the names of all candidates appeared on the same ballot, which was compiled, printed and placed at the polls under the direction of public officials and at public expense; in other words, the ballot itself was strictly official. The system had a threefold purpose—to prevent dishonesty in counting votes, to insure absolute secrecy and to protect the voter from outside influence while casting his vote. These were accomplished by giving each voter a separate ballot and compelling him to go alone into a booth where he indicated his choice by making a mark opposite the names of the candidates whom he preferred. The ballot then was folded and dropped into a ballot box.

Its Cost Prohibitory

Beryllium is almost a third lighter than aluminum, so hard that it will scratch glass, acid-resisting except to hydrofluoric acid, it has remarkable powers of alloying, and its production is at present prohibitively expensive.

CHAPTER XIV

Will and Ernestine Choose

Will was nailing up a wooden box. The shelves and the table were empty. Ankle deep on the floor was a litter of papers.

"Ernestine!" He stopped, a hammer in hand, to stare at her.

"What are you doing?" she exclaimed, and then, with a little cry of horror she stooped and picked up from the rubbish on the floor, a torn picture.

"Oh, Will, how could you tear it up? It was good—it was wonderful. Why did you destroy it?" With trembling hands she tried to put the ragged pieces together on the drafting desk.

He looked at her astonished, voiceless. Before her, racked against the wall, was the sketch of herself, with Elaine on her arm.

"I'm glad you didn't throw this away—oh, Will, I like it so! But what are you doing? Are you moving?"

"What do you mean, Ernestine?" he said sharply. "Did you know about this office—when have you been here?"

"Of course I knew," she said impatiently, confused to find the need for explanations, now, at this vital hour. I've known you had this office, since last spring. I knew, long before that, that you were hankering for something—some new work. You remember the night you made this picture?"

She picked up the sketch of herself. "You remember? Of course you do. I knew then, that you were working. Lillian had told me she saw you in this neighborhood, and I came here the next day, and looked at all your work. Oh, Will, don't look at me so! I wasn't spying on you! You were so strange, and I was very unhappy—I had to know what you were doing. But aren't you going to work here any more?"

He laughed strangely.

"Rent's due tomorrow," he said. "I decided to let it go. I'm closing this office, and I'll never open another. I suppose, since you knew I was working here, that you were worried about the cats—but you needn't have worried—I'll stay with the job. I've given up my wild ideas. We'll keep the income—that's what counts."

"Why Will," she said swiftly, "you don't think there's any conflict between your desire and mine, do you? That's what I've been saving for—all this time. I knew that you would want to quit the cats, and I've saved a great deal of money—you'll be astonished. I had to know—it was right for me to know. It's made it possible for us to build a reserve. And why should I worry about the cats? Do you think I want you to stick to the cats, if there's something bigger, something more compelling upon you? Why, Will, Will—all I want is just what you want." Suddenly she remembered her errand, with a wail. "Oh, Will, Pastano wants the money for Loring—a bribe. Loring's in terrible trouble. He'll have to go to jail, but, oh, I don't want to give them the money for him. It's your money, Will—don't give it away—don't let them take it from us."

He caught her wrist and held it hard.

"Are you out of your senses?" he asked sternly. "What do you mean—money? What money have you?"

She opened her purse and took her small savings deposit book from it. She opened the book, and put it in his hand, the total across the narrow page. His eyes were wide, incredulous. He rubbed his hand across his face.

"It's yours, Will," she said with sudden gentleness. "I have robbed you of every cent I could get from you, and I've lived as cheaply as I could, and I've banked the difference—for you."

Deep within her she heard a warning bell. She remembered that they had much to tell each other. She laid her hand upon his arm, and said in the same low tone:

"Look at me, Will."

He looked at her—his brilliant black eyes fixed on her brown eyes—he looked at her deeply, with astonishment, and suddenly Ernestine was filled with a strange power and wisdom. She passed out of self-consciousness and was controlled and guided by deep instincts and ancient mother wisdom. She moved toward Will, put her face up to his and kissed his lips.

"Will," she said, smiling up at him, her lovely face alight with feeling, her tender mouth curved in a smile of sweetness. "Will, I love you. You forget it. You ignore it—you make love a burden instead of a support. I've seen it in the depths of your artist's mind—that love betrayed and entrapped you, instead of letting you free. Haven't you thought that?"

His arm trembled a little under her hand.

"Only once," he said, and his face flushed, "only once—the day after I had made that picture." He motioned to the picture she still held in her free hand. "The next day, I knew that I could not go on with my dreams, I knew I would have to quit it—that day, I felt so—it seemed as though—"

He paused, stumbled on, with courage. "It just seemed to me—a woman is so sweet and warm in one's arms—so generous—so lovely; and then, suddenly, there are a house, and a car, and children, and nurse maids, and cooks, and doctors—a thousand things—just suddenly. I shouldn't have felt so—I fought it—but it got me. I'm telling you—you asked me."

Her eyes were full of tears.

"I knew, Will—not just that way, but I knew—that's why I've been saving and been silent—that's why I didn't ask you any questions. But, Will, I love you. It's the biggest thing in the world to me, Will. It means to me what these pictures—what this work means to you. I'm not an artist—I'm not even artistic—but I know what your work means to you, because I love you. And when you shut me out, Will, it was for me just as it was for you when you were shut off from your work. I want you to be happy."

She was solemn, young, uplifted, filled with the glory of unselfishness, her face a blurred and lovely picture seen through tears.

"Dear heart, what does the money matter? Why, Will—even more than the children—yes, though I ought not say it—more than the children, than my people, than myself. You've told me how you felt, and I'll tell you, that for a little while, for one dark time, I was jealous of your work—of your love for it. But not any more, Will."

Deep Within Her She Heard a Warning Bell.

I want you to have what's best for you; I want you to hate your work. There isn't any conflict between your desire and mine, Will, or your future and mine, because I want what you want."

His face began to shine. He reached up, took her hand and held it.

"Ernestine," he whispered, and stopped as she leaned forward, her head against his shoulder, her face hidden so, while she went on swiftly:

"Will, I knew you were tired of the cats. Will, I spent only about a third of what you earned, last year. But you wouldn't tell me, you didn't want to talk to me, so I just went ahead, planning for the time when you would. I knew that you wouldn't want, probably wouldn't take, the money I'll have from grandmother and from papa, some day. But this is yours—it's savings from your earnings, Will. It's for your stake."

"You understood," he said hoarsely.

"Will," she said again, and now her arm was around his body, the picture up between his shoulders. "I'll tell you again—I—"

"No, no, Ernestine," he said with quick passion, "you can't let me; we can't go back. Do you know what it means? A living—I think I could make that—but it will be precarious—I've been into it all with some thought. It will be years before I can make even half what the cartoons bring me. Even if I get darned good—there's not the money to be found—I've thought it all out. I've been up and down and around this problem. I've tried to save some, too. But it won't work. It's precarious—it's too scanty. I've been through it all, and made up my mind. Don't tempt me with your savings—they wouldn't last us a year."

"If we went back to the West side, back to the old house, I could do my own work, and the children, and I could live on the trust fund; until you got started. You could keep this studio, and you could go to Philadelphia and to Paris and study."

"Would you—would you do that—for me? Ernestine, my wife." He kissed her, and she shook the tears from her own lashes and drew him down and pressed her lips against his eyes.

"It wouldn't be necessary for you to do that, darling," he said to her, and he laughed a little. "It wouldn't be that bad. I could make a living—and you've your trust fund, and your grandmother has promised you the house at Langley lake. No, you won't have to go back to the West side—you can keep Molly, I believe. We can manage that much, Ernestine, with good luck and good management."

"Oh, Will," she said to him, "I almost wish it would be hard like that again. I've been so lonely—longing to help you, feeling outside. What does the car and the house and the things mean if I'm cut off from you? I know I can't help you with your painting. I know that travail is yours—that's your work—your life. It must be first with you, Will. And that's right. Gifted people can't choose. But if your work must be first, to you, you can understand what love and marriage mean to me. That's my life. And if I can feel that you can go on—because I understand—"

They were both crying, his arms were around her—tight—tight. As their tears mingled and they stood together in the long embrace, the kiss that was free from passion but fraught with tenderness, the purest and holiest feeling, true married love, welled over them. It seemed to Ernestine, straining so in his arms, that for the first time she was truly wife to Will. Not only bride, bride of his body, star of his imagination, object of romantic adoration, not only the mother of his children and the keeper of his house, but wife—wife—in the deep places, the secret places of love.

"Ernestine," he whispered, after a little, and she wept afresh to hear her name so on his lips as he had whispered it when first they loved, "forgive me—that I didn't understand, that I didn't confide in you. You seemed always to have a child in your arms, a thousand needs. I felt that this other was a foe to you. I was stupid, blind. I thought you wanted the money—needed it. You were hard with me that summer before I made the cats. I didn't want to go back to that bad time again. I didn't know how wonderful you are. You're my good luck—you always were. I'll never forget it again. Oh, Ernestine, I'll do big things for you—I will."

A clock somewhere boomed two, and Ernestine started in his arms. She had remembered Loring—at last. She withdrew herself from her husband's arms and made a gesture of helplessness.

"But here's this business of Loring," she said.

"What is it about Loring?" he asked, watching her.

So with the enchantment, the throb, of love still on her, she told him about Loring—about all that Pastano had said to her that morning.

"But of course," he said at once, "you must let me take the money for you—at once. Give me the slip of paper."

She gave it to him with a reluctant sigh, and he gave a whistle as he looked at it.

"How could you have refused Pastano?" he asked. "Think what it would mean to your family—to your mother. And Lillian—with Loring dragged through the mud—"

"But Will! The money's yours—it's what we've just been talking about. It's your chance."

"I don't need twenty thousand dollars," he said quickly, and then gave a laugh of pure happiness. "Why, Ernestine," he said, "if you understand—if you know what it's all about—if you can live that economically and if you're behind me, I'll take a chance on it. Give me the money for Loring—we can wangle it. After all," he added more seriously, "the understanding—the way I feel now—is worth more than the money. Let Loring have the money, we're rich. When we were young and poor we did as we liked. But after we got a little money we weren't free agents any more. The big income restricted us more than the little one. Look how Loring was bound by money! Let's let it go. After all, only beggars can choose!"

"If you'll quit the paper and go ahead with this work, if you will stick to your own dreams, I'll gamble with you," she said.

"It's done," he answered. He reached for his coat and hat, and looked at his watch at the same moment.

"We'll have to go right back to the bank. Thank God, you've got the money and don't begrudge it. Nothing can stop us, now."

And before they went out into the dark and narrow hall, they kissed again, hand in hand, simply, like children pledging a secret.

Ernestine saw Ruby Pastano near the bank entrance and, though he bowed formally and did not speak, he gave her a flashing, radiant glance, like the flash of a mirror held in the sun. She knew that he understood, from the happy countenance and from Will at her side, that they were looking after Loring.

Demand for Dwarfs Met by Inhuman Exploiters

Dwarfs were the lapdogs of medieval times. And so popular were they that many merchants specialized in selling them to the nobility.

"Marc Antony owned a dwarf," writes M. R. Werner in Liberty, whom he called, ironically, Sisypheus. In Rome there were dwarf merchants who, when they could not obtain natural specimens for the emperors and nobles, manufactured dwarfs by underpouring normal babies, or by binding their limbs to prevent full development.

"Tiberius, Domitian and Hellogabrus paid high prices to their dwarf merchants, who experimented constantly to supply the demand. Catherine de Medici, in order to secure a regular supply of dwarfs for her court and as presents for her friends, caused all the dwarfs of her establishment to be married in a large scale effort to produce a race of midgets. The marriages, however, were uniformly barren, and her majesty was sadly disappointed."

Surprised Pussy

To a large tabby cat of Schenectady, Pa., falls the distinction of being the first of her species to "speak" to Australia by telephone. While engineers were discussing electro-dynamics with colleagues 10,000 miles away, pussy appeared. Jumping quietly on the table the feline yawned and emitted a depressed meow. In far-away "down under" an Australian heard it, and politely replied "Meow." The cat sneezed and hopped on the floor.

not to do

Is this the question in your home every night after dinner? Then we'll wager you don't have automatic hot water service. You have to wait for your water to heat in a teakettle. You have to skimp with it, using just so much for the suds, so much for the rinsing, so much for the inevitable pots and pans. And it seems to take twice as long as it should.

It's all very different when you can just turn a faucet for your hot water. Then dishwashing isn't bad at all. You can have your foaming suds in half a minute—waste a little water in rinsing if you like—it doesn't matter. There's no danger of being caught short. You know there's a tankful of hot water waiting to be used. Not only for the dishes but for bathing, cleaning, washing—anything.

You can have an automatic gas-fired water heater installed in your basement for only

Candidates Chosen by Peoples Party

Present office holders were chosen to run again on the People's Party ticket by a caucus at Good-fellowship hall Wednesday evening. The candidates are: R. J. White, for president; K. Sidell, E. A. Burns, Fred Kasten for trustee. Peter Johnson for police magistrate.

Peter Johnson, the candidate for police magistrate, is now village treasurer and is an attorney by profession. It will be recalled that he ran for village president against "Buck" Hamilton in the first village election.

In the campaign last spring the Conservative party ran all of their candidates to succeed themselves, when all of their candidates terms expired. This spring all of the People's party representatives terms expire.

The deputies and the owner, Frank Frederico, organized a bucket brigade and had the fire under control when the Homewood fire department arrived. The fire, started by an overheated stove, caused $400 damage.

Bremen Township Health Topics

Eleanor Gallagher, R. N.
Rural Nursing Service of Cook Co.

There is a large number of persons, especially children, suffering with what seems to be "flu". They start with a high fever, much headache and general pain and aching of the muscles, in many cases there is sore throat.

It is always best to put the children to bed for a day or so and keep them warm; at least take this precaution as there has been so many cases that developed pneumonia, which might have been offset by care in the beginning.

We would like to have all the children of veterans six years old and under who are getting milk through the Veterans Bureau to attend the Welfare conferences there at least occasionally as the Veterans Bureau is going to ask for a report on these children before long and if they do not attend conferences there will be no report to give.

It might be of interest to the members of the Midlothian Relief Association that we registered the names of the 13 families that received aid from the Association through the writer. There was only one family that had been previously registered with any other organization.

This we think speaks well of the fact that there was not aid given to habitual askers.

Forest Ridge Bond Issue Carries 64 to 1

The $25,000 bond issue for district 142 on the Forest Ridge school carried Saturday by a vote of 64 to 1. The issue was made necessary by the insufficiency of tax money due to the reassessment and the depression to meet outstanding obligations.

Although the recent bond issue in district 143 won by a decisive majority, the bond issue proved even more popular in district 142.

Robertson Will Not Object to Sidewalks

The following letter has been received by residents of the John R. Robertson subdivision:

"Are you ready to have your sidewalks put in now? If the majority want walks, I am not going to object."

"If you can pay cash the cost will be only $60 for each 60 foot frontage on inside lots, but if you let the village put yours in, it will cost two or three times that, as village bonds must be sold at a big discount now. Times being so hard, it will be a heavy charge on those who cannot pay cash."

(Signed) John R. Robertson
According to a resident who talked with Mr. Robertson on the phone Saturday, the subdivider does not want sidewalks on streets on the prairie, where no one is located, but where they can be used he favors them if the residents want them. The figures quoted above for private contract work would indicate that the average property owners could have sidewalks for $1.00 per foot and those on corner lots pay one-third the cost of the sidewalk. It is also said that some contractors will give 90-day terms on private contracts.

Mr. Robertson is also said to favor each subdivision handling its own sidewalk problem and he is willing to meet with any organized group in his section. It is said to be the best time in five years and probably the best time before the Fair to obtain low labor and material prices.

Up to Saturday many favorable replies had been received at his office and only two were against.

Mr. Lyons states that he is an old hand at publicity stuff, for he served 18 years as a reporter on Chicago papers.

Lions Hear Address on "Scouting"

Our people today are suffering from over-organization, according to Principal Longden of the Whittier and Cary school, Harvey, who addressed the Midlothian Lions club Monday night on "Scouting". He believes that organizations who are not actually needed should be abolished, but after serving as scout-master four years he is "sold" on the benefits of boy scout training.

To be equipped for life today we must be able to earn a living, but we should also be able to so earn it that we may give a more abundant life to others.

He pointed out that boys 12 to 16 are deciding on their life work. In earning the various merit badges the boys learn something of architecture, metal work, art, masonry, fire fighting, farming, first aid and many other fields, a total of eighty in all.

Character Development

These contacts create social sympathy and a fine sense of patriotism, at a time when many influences are undermining love of country.

A scout, repeating his oath, is bound to learn to think before doing wrong. Its benefit is proved by the almost total absence of scouts from the juvenile courts. In church and school boys are taught what to do; scouting gives them a chance to put these principles into practice. A fine sense of obedience is developed and arguments over religion and nationality are taboo.

Need for Leaders

Mr. Longden told the Lions that they could do much by assisting on scout committees and, if craftsmen, could assist boys in earning their badges. As a scout master he found many friendships that are mutually profitable. He cited Joe Couch's work in taxidermy as proving what the boys learned and expressed his pleasure at the gift of a stuffed owl from the boy at Christmas time.

In closing he congratulated the Lions on the work they are now engaged in and invited them to attend the scout exhibition to be held in Harvey, soon.

Work on Gym Equipment

Monday was known as "Bill Sedgwick Night", in appreciation of another box of Midlothian Specials given the club.

The school gym equipment committee is now at work making some of the items. The publicity committee has secured permission to erect Lions signs on two sites and are working to get three others.

Relief Resolutions

Two resolutions on relief were passed unanimously. They read as follows:

WHEREAS, the Midlothian Lions Club, realizing the need of greater efforts in affording emergency relief measures during the months of February and March, and

WHEREAS, although the individual members are aiding the unemployed and destitute by carrying a total of thousands of dollars on their books, some of which can never be collected, we feel that, as a service club, still more can be done, and

WHEREAS we believe this untold 100 cents of each dollar we contribute should go to the unemployed rather than a considerable percentage should go to entertainment expenses,

THEREFORE be it resolved by the Midlothian Lions Club, meeting this 2nd day of February, 1931, place a special assessment of one dollar on each member for each of the months of February and March, 75 per cent of the proceeds to go to the Midlothian Relief Association and 25 per cent to the Arbor Ridge Relief Association.

PROVIDED, however, that this plan be approved by both relief associations and that no requests for additional tickets be made on the members during these two months.

WHEREAS it has been brought to our attention that some of our members have carried the accounts of some needy families on their books for some time, and

WHEREAS some of these families are now receiving aid from the Midlothian Relief Association in the form of groceries and from the Township Supervisor's office in milk orders, and

WHEREAS in many cases these orders are going to other merchants than those who have been carrying them, particularly in that our local dairy accounts have been given to a Chicago concern, and

WHEREAS we believe this unjust and a hardship on the business men concerned,

THEREFORE be it resolved by the Midlothian Lions club in regular meeting assembled, on this 2nd day of February, 1931, that the proper agencies be respectfully asked to correct this situation if such action can be properly accomplished, and

BE IT FURTHER RESOLVED that copies of this Resolution be sent to the Midlothian Relief association and the Township Supervisor's office.

The names of four prospective members were approved by the club.

BABY GIRL

A baby girl was born to Mr. and Mrs. Frank Lilly at 8:15 Wednesday morning, at the Lewis Memorial hospital, 30th and Michigan.

Legion Asks Soldiers Bonus As Relief Measure

The following resolution was passed at a recent meeting of the Midlothian American Legion Post.

Whereas:

The stringent condition at present throughout the country is causing untold hardship, starvation and misery to a countless number of ex-service men, and

Whereas: The cashing of the Adjusted Compensation Certificates now will be of infinitely more value to ex-service men than at some future date, and

Whereas: Conditions are urgent and necessitate speedy action, and

Whereas: The cashing of the certificates will relieve conditions among several millions of men and their families and will also benefit immensely the economic condition of the country, therefore

BE IT RESOLVED. That Midlothian Post No. 691 present this resolution in writing to the State and National bodies, and a copy be mailed to the Honorable Senators Otis F. Glenn and J. H. Lewis, urging Congress to immediately pass the Soldier Bonus Bill.

Hit-and-Run Victim Buried on Monday

Thaddeus Kiemal, 11 years old, victim of a hit and run driver on Western avenue at 141st street last Friday, was buried from St. Stanislaus church Monday morning.

The St. Stanislaus school children escorted the body of their school mate from his former home to the church and after the requiem mass accompanied it to Western avenue. At the head of the procession were 24 altar boys with whom Thaddeus had served mass in the parish church. Six of the altar boys served as pall bearers.

The parents of the dead boy, Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Kiemal and seven brothers and sisters, John, Joe, Stanislaus, Antoinette, Leo, Cecelia and Rose survive.

Sunday evening classmates of the boy gathered in his home and said the rosary for him. The day of his death he had completed the winter school examinations, in which, his teachers say, he manifested his usual brilliancy.

Firemen Called Out by Early Alarm Saturday

A fire alarm was sent in at 12:30 a. m. Saturday when a fire was discovered in the clothes closet of the home of J. Stegebauer. The blaze was put out with a garden hose. The cause is unknown.

Wanted-Relief for Basketball Team

Is there a qualified basketball player hereabouts who would like to play with the Clarke-Hulette team?

The boys have been doing good work, but they are handicapped by having only one relief player. If one is disqualified by a foul, or what have you, they must play short handed.

A large crowd of home folks are now regular fans at the Harvey gym and they report that the local boys are favorites of the Harvey fans.

DRAMA CLUB ELECTS OFFICERS: COMMITTEE

CHAIRMAN

The Drama Club elected officers and appointed committees in their meeting last Sunday.

Louise Jage is president, Betty Anderson is vice president and Francis Holmes is secretary-treasurer. Alice Bloomquist is chairman of the social committee, Wm. Bihlmayer of the stage committee, Vernon Swillum of the Advertising committee and Florence Bloomquist of the music committee.

The dates of the next plays are Feb. 19 and 20 at St. Luke's Union church. Do not forget. You will hear more of this.

WORK ON DIRECTORY

The MESSENGER staff is working on a directory of Midlothian organizations, which will be published in this paper as soon as it can be completed. If an officer of each organization will call 2680-Y-1 and give us the names of officers, time and place of meeting, our work will be considerably lessened and no one will be left out.

We can then print the notice of your meetings in the issue next preceding the date of the meeting.

HEARS CASES

Justice Louis DeRudder is now hearing cases from the Midlothian police. The office of police magistrate in Midlothian became vacant on the death of Judge Frank Stuart.

Mr. and Mrs. Ed. Reimer entertained guests from Champaign Saturday.

Robbers Busy in Bremen; Loot Small

Although Bremen township has been comparatively free from crime, a series of robberies has taken place in the past few days, assuming the proportions of a small crime wave.

The most serious was the pickup of the Oak Forest bus on Thursday of last week. About 11 p. m. two men boarded the bus at Midlothian. On Cicero ave., the driver felt something poking him in the side. Finding it to be a gun in the hands of one of the passengers, he turned over the day's receipts, of between $25 and $30.

Monday night motorcycle belonging to Tommy Roach was stolen from his garage.

Shots Frighten Burglars

Saturday night the Blue Park Gun club, Markham, was burglarized. Winfield Roesner, who lives nearby, heard the dogs barking and fired two shots in the air to frighten away whatever was disturbing them. Sunday he found the club radio ready to be taken out, and the lock of the cupboard (in which ammunition was stored) twisted. Apparently the burglars had been frightened away by the shots.

Some time last week the home of C. B. Hutchins, near the country club, was entered and a window broken. A rug was rolled up, but nothing was taken.

Under $10,000 Bond

Two Oak Forest youths, Harry Kelly and Ray Coffeen, are reported under $10,000 bond by the Chicago police, charged with the alleged attempt of robbery of a gas station at 87th and Loomis st., Chicago.

According to Geo. Wittenkeller they borrowed his car to go to Oak Forest on the night of the alleged attempt, which was prevented by the arrival of another customer. Frightened, they left but the attendant got the number of the car. George had a lot of explaining to do to convince the police that he was not involved in the case.

The boys were arrested by county police last Sunday.

P.T.A. Meets Monday; Program by Legionnaires

The Midlothian P. T. A. will meet Monday night at the school. The Legion will have charge of the program, and, judging from the success of last year's Legion night, it will be a most interesting one.

The speaker of the evening will be Thomas K. Davey, chaplain of Englewood Post, whose emphatic views on modern questions and vigorous expression of them, have made him one of the most popular speakers in Cook County. Another feature will be the 26 piece Junior Legion band of Fort Dearborn Post.

Sergeant Michael B. Ellis, who is officially credited with singlehandedly silencing ten machine guns and capturing 44 prisoners in the Argentine drive in 1917, is to be heard in the "Chevrolet Chronicles" hour over stations as shown above.

Known to the company as "The Lone Wolf" because he preferred to operate alone, Sgt., Ellis' exploits behind enemy lines provide one of the most spectacular chronicles of the World War and won for him the Congressional Medal of Honor, highest government award for extraordinary valor in action.

Frazier Hunt, one of America's best-known journalists, will interview Sgt. Ellis for the radio audience.

The Beatitudes:
Blessed are the pure in spirit: for theirs is the kingdom of heav-en.
Blessed are they that mourn: for they shall be comforted.
Blessed are the meek: for they shall inherit the earth.
Blessed are they which do hun-ger and thirst after righteousness: for they shall be filled.
Blessed are the merciful: for they shall obtain mercy.
Blessed are the pure in heart: for they shall see God.
Blessed are the peacemakers: for they shall be called the chil-dren of God.
Blessed are they which are per-secuted for righteousness' sake: for theirs is the kingdom of heaven.
Blessed are ye, when men shall revile you, and persecute you, and shall say all manner of evil against you falsely, for My sake.
Rejoice and be exceeding glad: for great is your reward in heaven: for so persecuted they the prophets which were before you.—Matthew 5:3-12.

COUNTY AID

"Under the arrangements for the relief and care of the poor, our country revenue has nearly all been swallowed up. Indeed, it is now feared that the poor expenses since the last report have exceeded the revenue accruing for the time. The state of things has alarmed the community. . . . All are anxious to do everything in their power to re-lieve the poor and at the same time economize for the county as much as possible."

A rather interesting editorial, appearing in the Chicago Daily Dem-ocrat, under date of January 5, 1948. Since it was written before prohibition and before the machine age, we wonder just how the editor explained the depression of that time.

CONVICTS COST MORE THAN UNIVERSITY

Illinois Federal Taxes Would Support 60 Institutions Size of U. of I.

Woodland, Mich.—What citizens of Illinois paid into the United States treasury in 1928 would support fifty universities the size of the University of Illinois, according to Eugene Davenport, dean emeritus of the University of Illinois, who resides here.
Illinois citizens paid, directly or in-directly no less than $300,000,000 into the Federal treasury during the year in question, whereas the University's appropriation approximated only six millions.
Furthermore, this huge Illinois con-tribution to Federal purposes would support all the land-grant colleges state universities, agricultural and en-gineering experiment stations in the United States and its territories with a liberal balance left over," says Dean Davenport.
"Again," the dean continues, "it costs the State of Illinois more, after apprehension and conviction, to care for its 6,000 prisoners than it does to educate the 14,000 students of the University with all of the Universi-ty's research and investigation work thrown in for good measure. Prison-ers pay no return on the funds re-quired; education and research pay large returns, both direct and indirect

EDITORIAL SPOTLIGHT

THE DEFEAT OF TIME.—Chicago Tribune.
Time cracks and splinters under the sledges of science, and the stern front of years that once faced men irrevocably has yielded in many places and broken down. A message from London to Chicago, a hundred years ago, was at least three months on the way. Wide water to cross in sailing ships and the wilderness of Alleghany mountains took many hard fought weeks. In 1850 a message from London still was five weeks or so away. In 1900 a message could come from London in about half an hour. Yesterday a man talked to the Tribune over the telephone from his London office, and time for the nonce had disappeared.
Time is a willing horse when men learn how to drive it. Once broken in, it will do any service in its power. For new ideas have come. Between yesterday and today there is no thing called time, rigid and absolute. Time is merely a form of reference that helps us classify events relative to each other. That is hard to believe, even for many scientists, and until Einstein came along time for most men was an absolute container of all things.
The carton of time is broken now. In modern works and in modern science time becomes more relative. It is a system of measurement be-tween objects. It is nothing in itself.
LONG DISTANCE TELEPHONY GROWS.—Mobile Post.
Long distance telephone communication is on the increase and dur-ing 1929 more cable for toll business was laid than in any previous year. This trend is probably due to the fact that long distance com-munication is continually growing cheaper and that service is being improved. At present 95 per cent of all toll calls are completed while the person calling remains at the instrument as compared with 70 per cent five years ago.
The importance of the telephone to modern business and social life can hardly be over-estimated. Civilization as we know it today could not exist without verbal communication between distant cities and nations.

GEOLOGISTS CAN AID MUNICIPAL PROJECTS

Illinois' developing industries have a friend in the State Geological Sur-vey located on the campus of the University of Illinois, for here basic information on the resources of coal, ores, clay, building stones, cement-making materials, road materials, pe-troleum, gas, and other minerals may be secured. It also supplies informa-tion on the geological history of the state.
The Survey is prepared to furnish on short notice all its available data on geological problems connected with reservoir projects, sewage disposal systems, land drainage, railway and highway building, city planning, im-provement of navigation and similar problems.
Bulletins on the geology and mineral resources of Illinois, as well as geo-logic and topographic maps which show accurately the civil boundaries, drainage, elevations and other infor-mation are published from time to time by the Survey.
In addition to their respective re-searches, members of the Survey staff of which Dr. M. M. Leighton is chief, are collecting and conserving for fu-ture use valuable information obtained from deep drilling, shaft-sinking, min-ing, borings for bridge foundations and other activities of mining and en-gineering companies.

ENTOMOLOGISTS GIVE STATE VALUABLE DATA

Investigations of problems concern-ing the development and conservation of Illinois natural resources of forest, field and stream, and the control of insects and other pests is being car-ried on by the State Natural History Survey, a division of the State Depart-ment of Registration and Education, with its headquarters on the campus of the University of Illinois.
Its publications, totaling almost 20, 000 pages, amply illustrated, are dis-tributed freely to libraries, schools and interested individuals, particu-larly in Illinois.
The State Natural History Survey, with its technical staff of five entom-ologists, three zoologists, two botan-ists, one forester, and a number of as-sistants, supplies information on the plant and animal life of Illinois, giv-ing preference to subjects of educa-tional and economic importance.
Permanent field stations of the Sur-vey are located at Des Plaines, Jack-sonville and Carbondale.
Survey collections consist of more than one million preserved specimens, including insects, fishes, mollusks, rep-tiles, birds, many smaller forms of animal life on land and in water, and extensive collections of botanical ma-terials especially valuable to agricul-ture.

STATE CAPITOL NEWS

Hiram L. Williamson, Secretary of the Illinois Press Association.

Gov. Louis L. Emmerson declared in a recent address at Aurora, that public officials in Illinois and other states have the opportunity to render much needed co-operation in restoring respect for law by conducting government in a manner deserving respect. He states that evidence that the great body of "God-fearing" men and women are becoming aroused at the disregard for law and organized society being exhibited by the small minority and further said that there exists in the larger cities an invisible super-government that "attempts to control local politics, extends its sinister influence into our courts, and deals out machine gun justice to those who cross its path." He further stated that "many of us, casting superficial glances around, have decided that the trouble rests in our judicial system, and in the machinery of the law itself." Governor Emmerson declared that while changes in procedure may get better results, the real answer to good government lies in the support given to the law by the public.

Uriah J. Hoffman, supervisor of rural schools in the state department of public instruction since 1903, and widely known throughout the state, died January 25 at the Springfield hospital following an extended illness. Mr. Hoffman had originally been a teacher for a number of years and also served three years as county superintendent of LaSalle county. His experience qualified him for the position of supervisor of the rural schools, and Superintendent of Public Instruction Francis G. Blair appointed him to that position. He was largely responsible for the standards of the rural schools being raised to their present high levels in Illinois.

License of the Continental Indemnity company of Kansas City, Mo., to do business in this state, was revoked recently by the department of trade and commerce, because of failure to post $100,000 as required under the state insurance law, or to notify the state department of insurance that such an amount was on deposit in some other state.

William Henry Harrison, member of the board of pardons and paroles, who was recently arrested in Chicago charged with accepting a bribe, has been dismissed by Gov. Louis L. Emmerson. This action was taken on the report and recommendation of William C. Jones, chairman of the board.

George H. Shafer, of Chicago, has been appointed assistant transportation rate expert, in charge of section rates and tariffs of the Illinois Commerce commission, succeeding C. G. Zorn. The appointment was effective January 15.

Senator Simon E. Lantz has introduced a state income tax bill in the upper branch of the general assembly. The bill provides for a tax of 1 per cent on incomes up to $5,000; 2 per cent on incomes of $5,000 to $10,000; and 3 per cent on incomes over $10,000. Exemptions of $1,000 to single persons, $2,000 for married persons and $500 for each dependent are allowed.

The Ferguson Construction company, of Rockford, was the low bidder on the construction of the George Rogers Clark Memorial bridge across the Wabash river at Vincennes, Ind. The bridge is being built by Illinois and Indiana with the Indiana officials having charge of its erection. Both states also divide the cost of that bridge. The low bid for the Vincennes project was $247,195.34.

Black walnut seed is to be distributed to farmers and others interested in propagating this valuable tree, according to Lewis B. Stringer, superintendent of the state division of forestry.

Dr. Andy Hall, director of the state department of health, is authority for the statement that it costs $250 for each visit of the stork, while the expenses attendant on a visit of the "grim reaper" are $370. According to Doctor Hall the expenses of births and deaths in Illinois last year were $64,000,000 or $8.50 per capita. Of this sum births accounted for $33,000,000 and deaths for $31,000,000.

Miss Georgia L. Osborne, librarian of the Illinois State Historical library, was struck by a hit-and-run driver while crossing a street in Springfield, January 21. She was taken to St. John's hospital where it was stated that she had suffered a broken left shoulder bone and shock. The driver has not been apprehended.

Length of vehicles allowed on the state highways will be limited to 30 feet, if a bill introduced by Senator Epler C. Mills, of Virginia, is passed by the Illinois assembly.

Printing, publication and distribution by the state of school books for use in the elementary public schools is the object sought in House Bill 124 of Representative Michael Fahy, of Toluca. It also creates the school book commission of seven members in the department of registration and education.

A bill has been introduced in the general assembly by Representative Elmer C. Wilson of Kankakee providing for a commission of five members to have charge of aeronautics in the state. The bill would require all aircraft and pilots operating in this state to comply with the regulations of the United States Department of Commerce, and provides that pilots shall present their licenses for inspection when requested to do so by travelers, or police officers. All airports, schools and bureau lights are required to be licensed by this commission.

Glenn Griswold, who conducts the "Round Table of Business" in the Chicago Journal of Commerce, claims an organized assault is being made on the uniform small loan law in Illinois and several other states. He predicts that an attempt will be made to amend the law so that the maximum rate chargeable under it will be 1½ per cent instead of 3½ per cent, which procedure he claims will make it impossible for decent and law-abiding small-loan companies to afford to operate.

Gov. Louis L. Emmerson's committee on unemployment relief reports the initial contribution by state executive employees amounted to about $32,000. The committee started the distribution of this money, most of which was allotted to the committee to use wherever it might be needed. Each contributor was permitted to suggest where his contribution was to be used and many availed themselves of this privilege and requested that it be sent into their own counties.

Increased placements by the free employment agencies of the state as shown by a report to Gov. Louis L. Emmerson by Barney Cohen, director of labor, give an optimistic view to the unemployment situation in Illinois. He further reports that many factories are hiring their old employees back upon starting larger operations, others are increasing their hours of work, and still other plants which have been idle are starting up again. During the week ending January 10 the free employment agencies had 9,252 applicants for work and placed 2,450.

A charter has been granted by William J. Stratton, secretary of state, to the National Boxing association of America. The association, headed by Gen. John V. Clinkin, chairman of the Illinois Athletic commission, Fred Gardner and George F. Getz, members, is organized to regulate and supervise professional boxing throughout this country and to encourage professional boxing in America.

Fire believed to have started from sparks from the flue, recently destroyed the two-story dwelling on the state laboratory grounds about two miles north of Springfield. The loss was placed at $20,000. The lower floor of the dwelling was occupied by John H. Craig, assistant director of agriculture, and the upper story which was furnished, was to be occupied by Donald Robinson, superintendent of animal husbandry. Furniture belonging to both families was destroyed with a loss set at $4,000.

Sunday School Lesson

(By REV. F. B. FITZWATER, D. D., Member of Faculty, Moody Bible Institute of Chicago.)

(©, 1931, Western Newspaper Union.)

Lesson for February 8

JESUS THE WORLD'S TEACHER

LESSON TEXT—Luke 6:27-46.

GOLDEN TEXT—And as ye would that men should do to you, do ye also to them likewise.

PRIMARY TOPIC—Jesus the Great Teacher.

JUNIOR TOPIC—Jesus the Great Teacher.

INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR TOPIC—Living by the Golden Rule.

YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOPIC—Accepting the Standards of Jesus.

The context, verse 26, clearly implies what is elsewhere positively declared (John 15:18-21; Luke 21:17) that the followers of Christ will be hated and opposed. In this lesson Christ, the master teacher, sets forth principles governing the life of his followers.

I. "Love Your Enemies" (v. 27).

Love here is not a natural affection. To love friends is easy, but to love enemies is only possible to those who have been made partakers of the divine nature—born again.

II. "Do Good to Them Which Hate You" (v. 27).

Love is positive in its nature. The true disciple of Christ will not merely refrain from doing injury to the one who hates him but will be concerned with doing good to him.

III. "Bless Them That Curse You" (v. 28).

To bless means to speak well of, to invoke a blessing upon. Injury by words is hard to let go unchallenged. The true child of God will return blessings for cursings.

IV. "Pray for Them Which Despitefully Use You" (v. 28).

We should pray for those who abuse us. The best commentary on this precept is Christ's own example, "Father forgive them for they know not what they do" (Luke 23:34). When Christ was reviled, he reviled not again. When he suffered, he threatened not, but committed himself to him that judged righteously (I Peter 2:23).

V. "Patiently Endure Wrong and Injury" (v. 29).

The Christian is not to bristle in defense of his rights but is rather to suffer insult, injury, and even loss. This expresses the law which should govern the individual's action, but should not be pressed so far that evil doers can go unchecked.

VI. "Give to Every Man That Askeeth of Thee" (v. 30).

God himself is the supreme example of benevolence. He gives freely and generously but intelligently. This text does not authorize promiscuous giving. It does not mean that every request made by the idle, greedy, and selfish should be granted. A man in poverty needs to be given a way to earn his living.

VII. Do as You Wish to Be Done By (v. 31).

This is called "The Golden Rule." It is the sum total of Christian duty as it pertains to human inter-relationships. Human beings carry with them the consciousness of obligation which is the touchstone determining their duty to others. If this rule were lived up to, the problem of capital and labor would be solved, and war would be put to an end. International relations would be peaceably adjusted and all profiteering in business would end.

VIII. Be Ye Merciful (v. 36).

This means to be filled with pity and compassion, to enter into sympathy with every need of others. The heavenly Father is our supreme example.

IX. Censorious Judgments Condemned (v. 37).

This means that we should not seek out the evil or faults in others for our satisfaction. We should not sit in censorious judgment upon the action of others.

X. Compensations of Right Living (v. 38).

The one who gives freely of money, loves sincerely, makes the Golden Rule the standard of his life, shows mercy and kindness to others, and refrains from impugning the motives of others, will be fully rewarded in time.

XI. Danger of Following False Teachers (v. 39).

The one who does not know God and the way to heaven will lead others to ruin.

XII. Those Who Reprove Others Should Strive to Live Blameless Lives (vv. 41, 42).

We should remove evil doing from our own lives before bringing others to account.

XIII. The Sin of Profession Without Fruits (vv. 43-46).

The one who is in fellowship with God will practice the principles which reveal the nature of God.

Ought to Be Sunny and Cheerful

Of all the people we Christians ought to be the sunniest and cheeriest. What a difference it would make to the world if our religion made us all a singing folk, and if it helped us to comfort and establish other people.—J. D. Jones.

Forgiveness

Forgiveness is not only a deliverance from guilt—it is the removal of all that shuts out the love of God from the heart.—C. H. Spurgeon.

INDISPOSED?

Headaches come at the most inconvenient times, but there's one thing that will always save the day. If you have some Bayer Aspirin you can soon be on your way. The sooner you take it the less time you'll lose—the less you'll suffer.

Shopping frequently brings on a headache. Over-exertion of any kind, eye-strain. Or just "nerves." Often it's the time of month. Regardless of the cause, you want relief. And you get relief when you take Bayer Aspirin. Take promptly! It will relieve the pain at any stage, but why wait until you are miserable? Bayer Aspirin can't harm you, because there is nothing harmful in it.

Remember this, when you're tempted to try some product that costs a few cents less!

BAYER ASPIRIN

Saving for a rainy day is chiefly intended to secure peace of mind before the rainy day comes.

No sensible person wants love that is in danger of being swept away by some trifle.

Was Your Grandmother's Remedy

For every stomach and intestinal ill. This good old-fashioned herb home remedy for constipation, stomach ills and other derangements of the system so prevalent these days is in even greater favor as a family medicine than in your grandmother's day.

Any man can agree with a woman, but it seldom does any good.

Fretful DAYS Restless NIGHTS ... give child Castoria

FUSSY, fretful, can't sleep, won't eat.... It isn't always easy to find just where the trouble is with a young child. It may be a stomach upset; it may be sluggish bowels.

But when little tongues are coated and there is even a slight suspicion of bad breath—it's time for Castoria!

Castoria, you know, is a pure vegetable preparation especially made for babies and children. When Baby cries with colic or is fretful because of constipation, Castoria brings quick comfort, and, with relief from pain, soothes him to restful sleep. For older children—up through all the school years, Castoria is equally effective in helping to right irregularities. Just give it in larger doses. What a comfort Castoria is to mothers!

Get the genuine, with Chas. H. Fletcher's signature on wrapper and the name Castoria that always appears like this:
